Important Questions That Confront the Enthusiastic Player Which, if Carefully Considered, Will Bring Good Results.

Have you ever taken the trouble to analyze your golf game? Assuming that the hole is 325 yards long, how many shots do you take after your drive? If you reach the green on your first appreach shot, how many putts do you average on the hole? How near the pin are 50 per cent of your approaches? Do you pay for the green or the pin? How many putts do you take on a course whose pat is 74? The par of that particular course allows you inst 36 strokes on the putting green. How many times are you under and how many times are you under and how many times are you over? Suppose you are hitting fairly long shots with your wood, is your short game equally good? How many strokes do you waste in a bunker? writes William Exans in the Philadeiphia Ledger. These are simple and elementary questions in golf. How many of them can you want to his figured that putting is you watch the draw. You can't plany poker unless you watch the draw. You can't play poker unless you watch the draw. Pay Attention to Putting.

Now if putting is fo per cent of your score, why not devote a little more time to it. If most holes are won and lost when you are from fifty to loo yards off the green would it not be worth while to give a little more time to the shart game. Suppose you are averaging from 150 to 20 t vards on your drive, what does the long drive amount to if your approachs hot is poor and your putting wretched and uncertain? How many golfers in your club are satisfied if they can use their wood well, either from the tree of fairway? What is the essential difference in the game between your sentth man and yourself? You are possibly setting within twenty or thirty yards of his tee shot, hole after hole, yet he is winning each hole consistently around. You and he may reach the green in two yet he wins the hole. What is the answer?

Scores of musicians play golf. You will find them in every club. Nome of them specialize in voice culture, others in plano. What per cent of them plays first-class golf? such cases would be expected even if no one had ever suggested the idea of heredity.

It can be mathematically demonstrated that if a sufficient number of people start to toss coins it is a certainty that at least one of them will toss 1,000 consecutive "heads." So with cancer: given a sufficient number of families, it is certain that many members of some few families will die of this disease. Therefore it is not necessary to assume that the disease is inherited to account for its frequency. Sometimes this fallacy crops out when certain notable cases, such as that of the Bonaparte family, are cited. It should be remembered that the rarity of such cases of apparent heredity tends to prove the very opposite. Such cases are so noticeable that they are remembered.

Cancer is a very large word, covering a number of widely different diseases. It may be, also, that under highly artificial conditions of inbreeding mice a certain susceptibility to tumors may be therited. Nevertheless, as applied to human beings and in the practical view, the foremost authorities believe that heredity in cancer may be rewarded as a negligible factor.

What Are We Waiting For?

we are going to be more companionable and sunshiny with as soon as we get a little more service in the house, the children whose lives we will enter into more fully as soon as we feel the pressure of circumstances a little less, the people we are going to show how genial we really are as soon as we have time—none of these ways of loving depends on the things we are waiting for. Indeed, our opportunity comes more now than it will come when we have these things. The very pressure of our days brings us in contact with many people who most need a show of kindness, and who will most warmly respond to it. The wife most needs and will most value love in her days when she is most being a helpmeet. The husband most needs and most prizes love in his years of struggle. What are we waiting for? The kingdom of heaven is within and will not come of circumstances.

errespondence of the Associated Press. TIFLIS, Transcaucasia, March 27.—Many thousands of the As-syrian inhabitants of the country wes of Lake Urumiah have had to flee be fore the coming of the raiding Kurds Some 45,000 or 50,000 of these people few months ago occupied the smil ing gardens on the lake shores. Now 12,000 are refugees in Russia and some 15,000 or 17,000 took refuge under the protection of Dr. Harry P. Packard o the American Presbyterian mission Urumiah. The committeemen field with their families. They can only hope today that some of their relatives will be returned to them from Kurdish enslavement. Those who did not escape or were not made slaves perished.

The committeenen speak English fluently and were at one time prosperous merchants. This was before their little tribe was gripped by the cogs of the great war.

Until American missions were established in the Urumah country the Assyrians maintained their religious traditions by semi-annual reading from half a dozen cherished parchiment New Testaments, taking the additional precaution of requiring the more gifted youths to memorize the whole of their sacred literature.

With mission schools and hospitals enlightenment and prosperity increased. The Assyrian villages were as famous for neatness and comfort as their gardens were for fertility. Further encouragement and protection were brought by the Russians, who came into the country about nine years ago. The Assyrians took sides with the Russians in the war, while the Mohammedans turned to the Turks and Germany. Organized and drilled by Russian officers, the Assyrians rendered valuable services by fortifying some of their yillages and guarding the carayan roads to Urumiah. About 250 were regularly enlisted, the central committee supplying the funds, Later committee supplying the funds Later 2,000 or 3,000 volunteers were under arms and had some training. Toward the end of December, the Russians and Assyrians defeated a large body of Kurds, inflicting a loss estimated at 5m. Fleeing before impending massacre, 3,000 of the Assyrians gathered at a strong village, Geograpa, and held their ground five days, with a loss of seventy men.
